

The Berkeley Bulletin

Volume 4

ENGN's Agenda:

The Engineers are doing engineering rotations in the morning, getting “blown away” by some wind turbines and after some project development will end their night with a pizza social!

HEAL's Deal:

Today, Medicine students have clinical diagnostics in the morning, a neurosurgery simulation, public health intervention, communication maze, and a survivalism lecture.

BIOT's Business:

Biotech students begin their day with incubator, will hear a guest lecture by Dr. Shigeta, participate in a Crime Scene lab, and have a pizza social at the end of the day!

Today's Distinction: Leaders Are Risk Takers

Risking is woven into the fabric of every significant vision throughout history. It requires the ability to transcend fear, to operate at full capacity without having any answers or guarantees to apply to what might happen. For leaders, risking is being vulnerable to their vision and commitment, which exposes them to criticism, disapproval, and even failure. Although fear is seen by some as paralyzing, leaders are completely willing to give up their “comfort zone” and face their fears head-on. Their relationship with fear is very unique in that leaders use fear as motivation, challenge and, most of all, opportunity. They see value in taking risks and experiencing all of the emotions that go with risking because they understand that to achieve the extraordinary, one must go where no one else has gone before.

COMM'S Corner

Journalism, Film, and Media Arts students will be discovering the world of communication, participate in the dyadic encounter, hear a presentation from Ms. Cohen, and newsroom simulation!

Featured Staff Member: Rachael Teague

Rachael Teague is a Medicine and Healthcare TA and is an alumni of NSLC, having attended the Medicine and Health Care Program at American University. Rachael is from Walnut Creek, CA and is pursuing a Communications degree with a minors in Anthropology and Political Science from Purdue University in West Lafayette, Indiana. She is also taking pre-Med requirements and is planning on attending Medical School in the near future with dreams of being a trauma surgeon. Outside of academics, she is involved with the Sigma Kappa sorority, she is the president of a diversity initiative called Purdue 360, she's a part of the horticulture club, and enjoys swimming, riding horses photography and writing poetry!

Featured Student: HoJun Lee

HoJun is a Journalism, Film, and Media Arts Student from Cresskill, New Jersey. He is interested in producing film and screenwriting but would like to explore the business side of that field. He has a goal to travel as much as he can, and to tell stories of hidden cultures in the word, and to make short films to expose those areas to people who may not be aware of them. He believes that there is a lot of underestimated power in film and is excited about the way that ideas are able to be transmitted through film. He believes that the world is so much bigger than some people realize, and that we should be able to see more of it.
